Dear ,

Man, time has certainly flown by. Just yesterday I held you in my arms and now you are gearing up to spread your wings and fly the nest. While I will miss you dearly, every day and with every fiber of by being, I am so excited for this next chapter of your life.

You have taken the steps to begin your journey into adulthood. I couldn't be more proud of where you are in life or more thrilled for what you will do with you future. Your great spirit, hard working attitude and willingness to try new things and never give up will take you so far. I am honored to be able to sit back and watch all that you will undoubtedly accomplish.

You are more than ready to take on the world. Believe in yourself, trust in yourself and realize that you can do anything that you can dream. Know that while you may travel to all sorts of corners of the earth, I will always only be a phone call away.

Congrats on this big step. The world awaits your greatness.

Love,
Mom/Dad
